

Avadex[®]
Herbicide

Fortress[®]
Herbicide

Get the Preemergent Yield Advantage!

- Controls wild oats before they emerge and begin competing for soil moisture and nutrients
- Avadex[®] MicroActiv, Avadex[®] BW and Fortress[®] are the herbicides of choice for managing wild oats resistant to postemergent herbicides (Groups 1 and 2)
- Fall or at planting application reduces spring workload
- Save on input costs – protect fertilizer investment
- Allows growers to properly time the postemergent broadleaf herbicide application
- Reduces off target drift concerns of contact herbicides
- Eliminates extra application costs when applied with fertilizer

	Labeled Crops
	Avadex MicroActiv	Avadex BW Fortress
Barley	Barley	Barley, Spring
Canary Grass	--	--
Canola	Canola	Canola
Flax	Flax	Flax
Mustard	Mustard	Mustard
---	Peas, Dry	--
Rapeseed	Rapeseed	Rapeseed
Sugar Beets	Sugar Beets	--
Wheat, Durum	Wheat, Durum	Wheat, Durum
Wheat, Spring	Wheat, Spring	Wheat, Spring

Gowan[®]
CANADA

Same reliable chemistry – New reliable owner

Fall Application Tips

- Apply product when soil temperature cools to 4°C or less at 5cm soil depth and within 3 weeks of soil freeze up.
- Avadex MicroActiv or Fortress can be applied in two ways
 - ✓ Surface application – no incorporation required.
 - ✓ Broadcast with incorporation – shallow incorporation with heavy harrows, rotary harrows or other suitable equipment.
 - ✓ Important! For best results on heavy wild oat infestations, use the incorporated treatment only.
- Good activity requires contact between the granule and soil particles.
- Applications should not be made to fields covered with snow or excessive crop residue which will not allow granule contact with soil.
- If excessive crop residue exists at time of application, a vigorous harrowing can be used to ensure herbicide granules make adequate contact with soil.
- Follow all applicable restrictions, directions and precautions on the product labels.

For more information regarding Avadex MicroActiv, Avadex BW or Fortress herbicides, contact Gowan Canada Business Manager:

www.GowanCo.com

Gowan[®]
CANADA

Avadex[®] and Fortress[®] are registered trademarks of Gowan Company. Always read and follow label directions.