Herbicide

A Valuable Tool to Combat Weed Resistance

The ever-changing weather combines with herbicide-resistant weeds to present more challenges to corn growers every year. While they want to effectively control weeds, they don't want to use a product that will slow or damage the corn crop.

As the exclusive distributor of AMVAC's IMPACT Herbicide in Western Canada, UAP is introducing this training program focusing on Impact herbicide. The first part reviews IMPACT's ability to control herbicide-resistant weeds without harming crops and how its wide application window fits in growers' crop management plans. The second part is a short quiz that qualifies you for 0.5 Crop Management Certified Crop Adviser continuing education credit.
